The kingdom has been laid to waste - the meadows fade, the flowers die, the animals disappear, the waters dwindle...

Don't be scared.

It's just the beginning of an old story

From the living fountain of instinct flows everything that is creative; hence the unconscious is not merely conditioned by history, but is the very source of the creative impulse.

Jung 1927

"Discussions about climate change and energy transition reveal shock, disbelief, denial, anger, black humour, haggling, depression and acceptance - in short, the whole emotional gamut of coping with loss...This implies that in the event of a complex transition, like the transition to a new energy system, the non-rational and emotional will have to feature prominently in the debate."

Hacking the city with alternatives

"Fortunately, occult charlatans are as a group more comfortable with the intangible, so if it's not presumptuous may I at least offer you this, the idea of a cake that has the idea of a file concealed within it: human beings can never experience reality directly, but instead only experience their own perceptions of reality in the vibrations of their tympana, in signals from their nerve ends and in the photon bombardment of their retinas. To any individual, the outer universe - from its most minute quanta to its furthest, oldest galaxies - is a phenomenon occurring only in their mind. This is not solipsism, but simply a recognition that each man and woman is positioned at the centre of a cosmos that is theirs alone, with the individual as its pivot and its governing intelligence. Our inner world is, in this sense, the only world that we can ever know or live in, but our inner world is endless and immeasurable, and is also the mysterious fountain from which most of the apparent outer world around us has emerged. The territory inside is the most potent and astounding human territory of all, and is accessible by anyone, regardless of their tangible, material circumstances. As the great American philosopher and entertainer Robert Anton Wilson once had his fictional character John Dillinger remark: "The only way to escape from a locked cell is to walk out through the wall, into the fire."

• • ((. .)) • •

• • to the sounds of the birds in the city • •

PERHAPS THEY ARE SPEAKING TO YOU. WHAT ARE THEY SAYING?

PERHAPS THEY VISIT YOUR DREAMS? OR SURPRISE YOU IN THE STREET?

REMINDING YOU OF YOUR HEART'S DESIRE.

☺ ♥ ☺ REMEMBER!

an invite to eco hack the city and enact alternatives

Self organised Day of Creative Action celebrating Brighton £ - open invite to activist / eco / political / creative groups & humans in area. Day focused on enacting strong alternative in the city - ends with street party. Open to all & designed to grow.

Experimental game / adventure blending digital + city. Incorporates city data + bold, playful action for ecology - plot points hinge on real-life interactions online & offline eg. planting a seed /bold communication. Experiment with emerging digital storytelling techniques - distributing story in the streets / codes & 360 videos plotted on maps/ photogrammetry archive of objects from the future / game online.

Hacking the streets - Seed bombs, chalk sigils, symbols, moss graffiti, exchange of messages with dead drops and other methods. Doorways and singing biospheres, permaculture, reclaiming space. & hacking old media: newspapers, radio, adverts. Drawing on experiments in communication: telepathy, visual languages, braille, morse, SETI, bacteria. Room for invention. Welcomes all styles. Heterotopia :)
